

How to Use the Child's Salvation Tract

By Linda Richey

Jesus wants children to come to Him. When children were brought so He could put His hands on them and pray, the disciples tried to stop them. Jesus responded: "Let the little children come to Me, and do not forbid them; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Matthew 19:13-14.

The salvation tract is a tool to help us bring children to Jesus.

How should this tract be used?

1. As an evangelistic tool to lead a child to Christ.
2. As a follow-up tool and a confirmation for a child who received Christ.
3. As a discipleship tool to train children how to lead others to Christ.
4. As a training guide for children's workers.
5. As a teaching tool for someone with limited vocabulary or reading ability.

10 GUIDELINES FOR LEADING A CHILD TO FAITH IN CHRIST

1. Encourage the child to talk to God using her own words. If the child cannot find the words, help her say the simple prayer on the back of the tract, repeating phrase by phrase. Remind the child to think carefully about the words she is repeating and to say them as if they were her own. After repeating the prayer, let the child tell you in her own words what has happened. Finish your prayer with thanks to God for His great gifts of forgiveness and salvation.
2. Use John 1:12 (paraphrased) to help the child understand that when we believe that Jesus Christ is God's Son, our Savior, God gives us the power to become His sons and daughters. Perhaps the child can read the verse in his Bible. If he doesn't have a Bible, it's important to give him a New Testament or a Bible portion.
3. Explain that inviting Christ to be King and Savior does not mean he will be perfect from that moment on. When he disobeys or does something he knows is wrong, he needs to tell God exactly what he has done as soon as possible. God promises that when we agree with Him that we have done something wrong and tell Him about it, He will forgive us and clean us from all sin. (1 John 1:9)

4. Teach the child that God is more powerful than the devil. The devil is a liar who will try to tell her that nothing has happened after Jesus became her Savior. In fact, the devil will try to make the child feel that she hasn't been forgiven and therefore should feel guilty. The Bible says that when God forgives our sins, He throws them into the deepest part of the sea (Micah 7:19) and doesn't remember them any more (Hebrews 10:17).
5. Remind the child that the Bible says that God keeps a record of all the things we have ever done or thought. To illustrate this, imagine that God uses a video camera to record everything each person does, says and thinks. When you ask God for forgiveness, Jesus covers all the bad things with the eraser of His blood from the cross. So, when the video is played back, God can only see the good things recorded.
6. Help the child to decide to know Jesus better every day. God is the One who will give him power to become like Jesus. To be like Jesus means to have His character of love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control, the fruit of the Holy Spirit.

To know Jesus better, every day he should:

- Talk with God and listen for His voice.
- Worship and praise God. Tell Him thank you.
- Read, study and memorize the Bible. Begin with the New Testament.
- Go to church to learn more about God.
- Talk with others about Jesus and help them come to know Him.
- Practice obedience by saying yes to God and no to sin.

7. Offer to have a class or Bible study with the child for follow-up so she can learn to walk with Jesus and grow in knowledge of Him and the Bible.
8. Pray for the child's special needs, asking God to help the child know Him and learn more about Him every day of her life.
9. Instruct the child to tell at least one other person that he believes in Jesus as his Savior and wants to serve Him all of his life. (Romans 10:9-10)
10. Teach the child that she was created to worship God. Teach her how to praise God, to sing and to tell God how awesome He is.
